SANDY'S PUB

Sandy's Pub is named after "the first lady of Olympic Valley" Sandy Poulsen, a neighbor and friend to all in North Lake Tahoe. Sandy and her husband, Wayne Poulsen, were true pioneers of Olympic Valley.

The duo moved to the area with a dream of turning the surrounding mountains into a world-class ski resort, and in 1948, the couple took on Alex Cushing as a business partner in the venture. The Poulsons and Cushing ended up parting ways, with Cushing going on to develop the valley into a ski resort, and the Poulsons starting a successful career in real estate. Sandy and Wayne further developed the Olympic Valley community, building amenities, and roads to access real estate they later sold, and they had eight children, four of whom went on to join the US Ski Team.

When the then Resort at Squaw Creek opened, Sandy and Wayne became quick regulars at the original restaurant, Bullwhackers. When the restaurant went through renovation, it was renamed in Sandy's honor based on her many contributions to the local community and her long-standing friendship with the resort. To this day, Sandy's Pub strives to provide a warm, friendly, and welcoming atmosphere to reflect the kindness that Sandy emanated to everyone she met.

Our Culinary Team sources food from local and sustainable farms and providers and works extensively to develop delicious recipes and procure fresh ingredients every day. Sandy's Pub is a longstanding favorite amongst locals and tourists alike, all of whom are drawn to the pub for its California comfort fare, extensive craft beer collection, and warm "Tahoe" atmosphere. Don't hesitate to start up a conversation at the bar, because you might learn a secret or two about ski terrain from an Olympic Valley local.
